Short Biography

I am a Senior Researcher in the Department of Neurology, School of Medicine and Health Sciences at Atma Jaya Catholic University of Indonesia. My expertise as a specialist doctor in the field of neurology encouraged me to take part in the development of dementia in Indonesia, one of which is being involved in various national and international research, speaker, and organizations that focus on dementia. My extensive experience as a research leader, with methodological expertise, grant management skills, mentoring of early- and midcareer scholars, and involvement with the development of health strategic plans and research recommendations.
